

The importance of the English language lies in the fact that it is the language of modern science, as most modern studies and international scientific research are in English, and this is what makes its use obligatory even for non-native speakers, and in recent years many things have changed regarding the methodology of teaching this language in schools and colleges. and universities, where schools focused on starting to teach English from the first grades of the student in the primary stage in preparation for increasing his ability to use language skills such as reading, writing, speaking and listening to become able to interact with the modern technological environment around him, so it was necessary for us to establish this research to introduce In this language and explain its importance and ways to learn it for non-native speakers, with all the rules related to it.